

THE ANNUAL

"Home Sweet Home"

If boys and girls have parents,
Then they always have a friend
They may scold a bit and punish
But they stand by in the end.

DEDICATION

With deep appreciation and sincere gratitude to those whose enthusiasm and zeal as parents have endeared them to us and whose never failing efforts have always been for our interest, we, the Class of Nineteen Thirty-eight dedicate this publication.

SCHOOL SONGS

Dear Old Creston High, which is ever nigh
To be our Counselor,
We will ever fight for a cause that's right
And keep our banner clean.
Take courage when you're losing
The victory's just ahead,
So on victory day, we'll be glad and gay
And to our school be true.

—Clayton Shankland.

Onward, fellows, we must conquer
Fight for Creston High!
Brown and Gold expect a victory
Win for Creston High!
Honor, fame, and glory calling,
You must do your best.
So whate'er the contest
Win for Creston High!

Fight then, fellows, fight to conquer
Fight for Creston High!
Never weary in the contest,
Win for Creston High!
Though the battle go against you
You must stand and fight
So whate'er the contest
Win for Creston High!

FACULTY

H. C. FREY

Superintendent

He faces life with its joys or ills,
Respected by all who know him.

MISS BRYAN

Principal

She is a precious jewel I have found,
Among the filth and rubbish of the world.

MISS McILVAINE

She is straight goods and not a sham.

MR. KINNEY

How far that little candle
Throws his beams.

MISS GRABER

Manners are not idle but the fruit of loyal nature and of noble mind.

MR. GATTSHALL

Some are born great—
Others achieve greatness.

MR. SMITH

An authority in his line.

MR. PLOUGH

Oh, what a glory doth this world put on,
On duties well performed and days well spent.

MR. YOUNG

Artists are made not born.

MISS WOLCOTT

Little strokes fell great oaks.

Class History

"REMEMBER ME?"

In September, 1935, thirty-one new freshmen became a part of Creston High School. One of the first things we did was to elect officers. For our president we chose Junior Romich, for secretary and treasurer, Emma Markley. Miss McCoy rendered her services as class adviser. We passed through our first year without much trouble, trying all the while to learn what it was all about. By May we thought we had a fairly good idea of what high school life was like so we said goodbye to one another till the fall of 1936, when we would advance to the sophomore class.

September came and so did twenty-five of us to tackle our second year at Creston High. We elected officers on September 4, as follows: President, Harold Graf; secretary and treasurer, Kathleen Hummel; and class adviser, Mr. Gattshall. Our sophomore year passed quickly and without much excitement. We passed our exams with plenty of confidence, and vacation came in no time at all.

Soon it was September again. We came back to school thinking that we knew what we were here for. Organizing our class, we elected Fred Gliem, president; Grace Whonsetler, secretary and treasurer; and Miss McIlvaine, class adviser.

Our Junior Class play, "Bright and Early," which was a grand success, earned the money to banquet the seniors. The Presbyterian Guild served the dinner, after which we enjoyed a show at Wooster. We studied more for our exams than usual that spring, for we all wanted to be in on the senior privileges, which, by the way, we've never received.

Well, here we are Seniors. Nineteen of us have returned to take the choice seats in the back of the study hall. We have chosen Harold Graf as president, Emma Markley as secretary, Virginia Walmer as treasurer and Miss McIlvaine as class adviser.

We have been very busy this year. Our class play, "Campus Quarantine," was made a success with the help of Mr. Frey. Another class project is the editing of the annual which will serve us as a book of memories. The class is also planning a week's trip to Gettysburg, Annapolis, and Washington.

Throughout the four years of our high school life, the members of the class of '38 have been very active in music, athletics, and literary contests. We have brought not only honor to ourselves, but honor and glory to our school as well.

The days that we will spend at Creston High are now growing few in number and we as members of the class of '38 feel that we owe a great debt to our school for giving us so many happy times. We shall never forget the years in Creston High no matter in what corner of the globe we find our life's work.

—Junior Romich.

Class Prophecy

"I'VE HITCHED MY WAGON TO A STAR"

While traveling through the Orient, I was attracted by a place called "Little Bit of Heaven." Here were many wishing Buddhas and crystal gazers, and I was allowed to peer into one of the large crystals. On doing so I saw the future, ten years hence, for the class of 1938. My enthusiasm was so great that I was immediately lost in this sphere.

The first person whom I recognized was Kathleen Hummel. Kathleen and I had started traveling together but when we reached Hollywood she decided to stay and become famous. She was shown operating an exclusive dress shop called "Katy Kreation." William Michel was first drummer in Henry Bussie's orchestra. At present they were on a tour in Europe. Bill was having a hidden romance with Count de Calorie's daughter Princess Karrot. I hope I return home in time to see them when they appear at the Lyric in Chicago.

The next thing to catch my eye was a view of Creston. There was a new fire department, with three shiny new fire trucks, proudly operated by Edward Morrison, the Fire Chief. There was a new Marshall-Fields Department Store and an Isaly Store. Eileen Henry had studied to be a nurse, but the crystal revealed her as the manager of the Isaly Store. Her greatest trade was in selling "crackless bubble gum" to the students of C. H. S. Gerald Bowman was second conductor on one of the Deisel streamlined trains. He sounds the whistle 19 times every time he passes through Creston—in memory of the 19 members of the class of '38.

On peering further into the crystal I saw Fred G'lem. Fred had married an Akron girl and had settled down on the farm to spend his days in peace and contentment. Junior Romich had also taken to farm life, but he was still carrying on his hobby of woodcraft. His home was completely furnished with his own woodworking. I know some day he will make a name for himself in this line. I recognized another familiar figure, Jean Boor. She was teaching child psychology in Ohio State University. Jean was not married for she had decided her career was far more important to her.

Now there appeared in the crystal large letters which read, "Hot Dogs." Earl Fulton and Samuel Foltz were in partnership in a hot dog stand at Coney Island. Their best customer was an old pal, Harold Yoss, who operated a Fishing Pond right next to their stand. All three of the boys seemed to enjoy their work.

My crystal gazing was here interrupted by an attendant who said that it was getting late and that after dusk the crystal would become so blurred that I would not be able to see the figures in it. I concentrated upon the globe for the few remaining minutes of light so I would not miss seeing any one of my friends. Harold Graf appeared before me. He was the proprietor of a chain of filling stations with his office in Canton. His success and wealth was due to a substance he called "Condensed Power." His advertising slogan was "A hundred miles on a teaspoonful."

The scene shifted and I found Virginia Walmer as a stenographer in one of the R. K. O. Radio Studios. Emma Markley was operating a Beauty Salon in Boston. Her specialty was "Face Lifting." Wayne Hunter was water boy for the Cleveland Indians, but he was promised an advancement in the near future. Merlin Hartzler was auditor for the First National Banks of America. He was making his home in Denver with his devoted wife and mother-in-law.

In the dim light I next saw Glenn Smith in a law office at Wooster. He had the reputation of never losing a case. To my great surprise I saw my own reflection in the crystal. I was modeling for Carson, Prie, Scott, in Chicago.

The blurred crystal refused to reveal any more secrets of the future, but it was a great prospect for the Class of 1938. More power to them.

—Written by Grace Whonseller.

P. S.—Mary Snell was married to a Fuller-brush man, and was very happy for she had a brush for every use and occasion.

Senior Class Will

"THESE FOOLISH THINGS REMIND ME OF YOU"

To Whom It May Concern:

You see before you the last will and testament of the Class of 1938

We, the Seniors of 1938, about to depart into a new life, and being of sound mind and knowing how unlikely it is we will finish this year, we hereby will everything and anything we don't want, need, or ever had, to anyone who thinks he can make better use of it than we did

Article I

To the members of the faculty we bequeath the following

- (1) To Mr. Frey we will the class' good wishes for future success.
- (2) To Miss Bryan we will a bigger and faster typing class.
- (3) To Miss McIlvaine we leave students who know what "quiet" means.
- (4) To Miss Graber we leave an English class that doesn't talk when she talks.
- (5) To Mr. Gattshall we leave a champion baseball team of Ohio.
- (6) To Mr. Smith we leave a more efficient manual training class.
- (7) To Mr. Kinney we will a P. A. D. class who will talk more than he does
- (8) To Mr. Plough we leave our sympathies if he has to advise the freshman class for three years.

Article II

To the Juniors we leave all the privileges we didn't want, the right to break all the rules we did, and our pocket edition of "How to be Dignified."

To the Sophomores we leave our intelligence. A rumor is they need it.

To the Freshmen we leave three years of work, worry, and waiting

Article III

Virginia Walmer leaves her quiet disposition to Nyla Schmollinger.

Merlin Hartzler wills all the A's on his grade-card to any Junior who needs them

Gerald Bowman wills his Ford to Clayton Shankland

Eileen Henry leaves her plumpness to Zella Scholl who needs a little excess weight.

William Michel leaves his nickname "late as usual" to any sleepyhead

Junior Romich, after much thought, leaves his curly locks to Bill Zehner.

Emma Markley leaves her speed in typing to anyone who will make good use of it and win a medal

Kathleen Hummel leaves her recipe "How to Be Slim" to Hazel Feeman

Harold Yoss leaves his height to William Uher.

Grace Whonseller and Jean Boor will their secrets concerning dates to Frances Haley and Bernice Myers.

Mary Snell wills her cheerful smile to Ruth Miller.

Fred Gliem leaves his seriousness to Jay Lehman.

Harold Graf wills his graceful dancing to Jack McGuff

Wayne Hunter leaves his habit of reading library books to Robert Blough

Edward Morrison wills his mannish figure to Richard Holderbaum.

Earl Fulton leaves his blushes to Marjorie Gantz.

Samuel Foltz wills his motto "Be Silent and Safe" to Donald Keltz.

Glenn Smith wills his way with the girls to Jack Plank.

Signed the first day of April, nineteen hundred and thirty eight, by the senior class of Creston High School

—Kathleen Hummel, Attorney.

Class Song

Tune - - "Memories"

Now we all are placed together
 Soon we will part and be gone
 Dreams of our old school day memories
 We'll wish we were back there again.

We are starting the work of our life time
 We hope it's as pleasant as these
 Dreams of the past will be memories
 Day's we've prepared for our life.

Chorus: Memories, memories of our old school days
 Dreams that we remember will
 Come drifting back to us
 Now we part with troubled hearts
 Wondering what's in store for us
 And we turn down the lane
 That will bring a refrain
 Of the days that we spent in school.

—Edward Morrison.

Orchestra

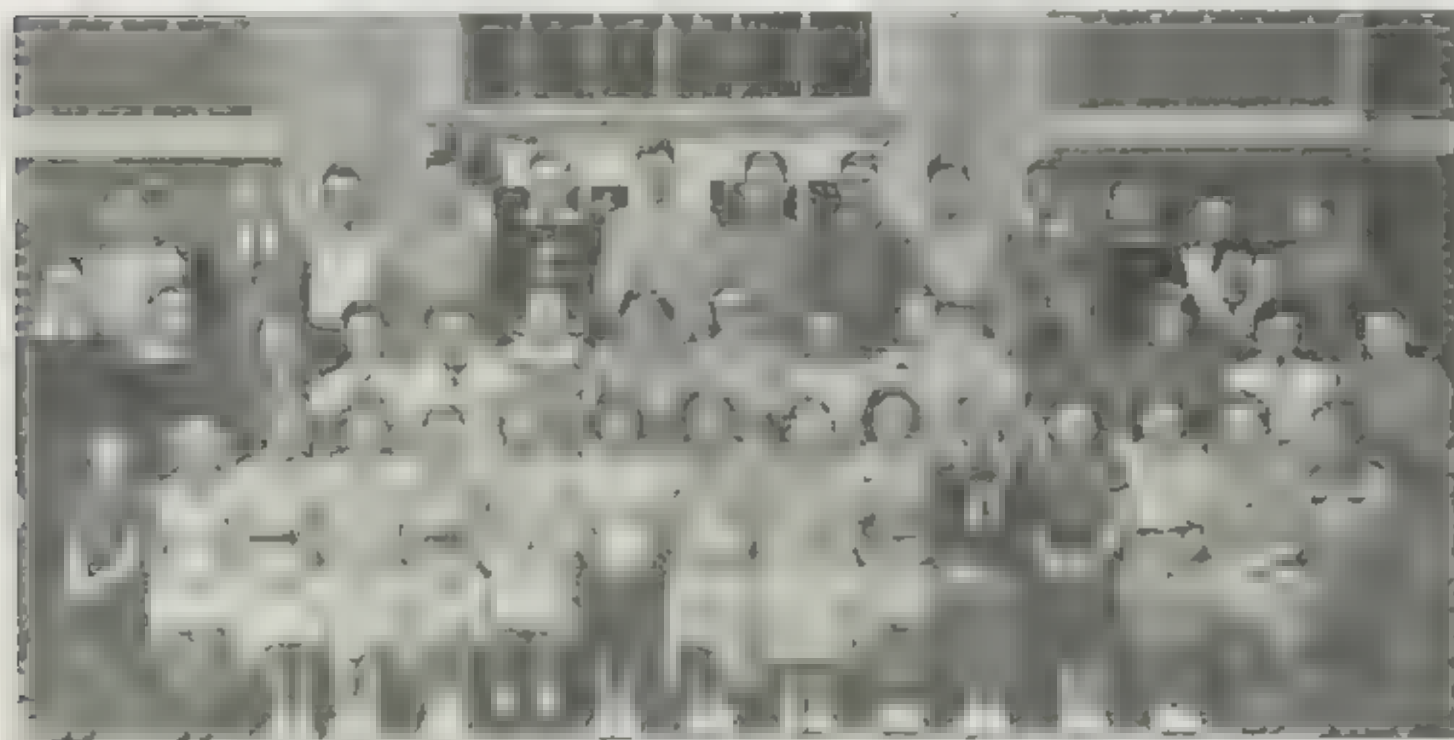

"MAMA, I WANT TO MAKE MUSIC"

The orchestra under the capable leadership of Mr. Young has been quite successful this year, and has furnished music for the various school activities. Credit is due Mr. Young for organizing a band and we hope that the splendid efforts of the orchestra and band will inspire future students to continue the good work. The Glee Club furnished the music for P. T. A. and baccalaureate.

Although Creston won just four league games out of the thirteen, the team is to be commended for something far more important than winning games—their sportsmanship. It was of the very best. We had a good team that made plenty of competition for the other teams of the county. They made an excellent showing in the tournament by winning the first two games and by losing the third game by only one point. Graf, a star player, Hunter and Morrison, letter men, will graduate

Synopsis

Kay Sutton, the spitfire daughter of Stephen Sutton, a big business magnate, arrives at a school for girls intending to go on to Bentford to meet her fiance, who wishes to marry her for her money.

Tom and Bud are two boys seeking work who arrive at the school. They persuade her to impersonate Kay Sutton, not knowing she is Kay Sutton, to help Miss Prudence, head of the Rutherford School, who has had financial difficulties and also that the boys might secure work.

Kay plans a large party, the expense of which has the boys worried

Kay's fiance comes to the school for her, and Bud recognizes him as a crook who had stolen Tom's money. Kay's father also appears inquiring about his daughter. Henri, Kay's fiance, is caught and put in jail. Tom and Bud find out Kay's real identity and as the scene ends Tom and Kay are seen headed outside for a ride in Tom's old Ford.

The Home Economics Club is a very active club. Meetings are held monthly and a social time is enjoyed.

The girls furnished the Assembly program for Christmas, a playlet was the main feature. Some of the members gave readings and musical numbers.

For their project this year the club members made drapes for the auditorium and Home Economics Room and the freshman members made covers for the sewing machines. They also study etiquette, entertaining, grooming and any other subject the members are interested in.

On March 18 the girls sponsored a St. Patrick's party for the High School.

Jean Boor stepped up to the counter in a music store. Bill Knepp, the new clerk, turned to wait on her. In her sweetest and most appealing tones she asked, "Have you 'Kissed Me in the Moonlight'?"

"No, ma'am," said Bill in confusion, as his face reddened. "It—it must have been the man at the other counter. I've been here only a week, and don't remember ever seeing you before."

Mr. Kinney: "What is a country without a man?"

Bernard Jeffers (prospective freshman): "Isn't there some course I can take without giving four years to it?"

This high school education you are now completing will give you a splendid foundation for success in life.

To get the greatest value from it—to have an opportunity to use that knowledge—you may need specialized training.

May we suggest business training as one form of specialized training worth your consideration?

Oberlin School of Commerce

This school is having one of the most prosperous years in its long history of three quarters of a century. It has gained a wide reputation for stenographers, secretaries and account-

A number of years ago it broke away from the custom of business schools of admitting students any day of the year making it necessary to use the individual method of instruction. Students are admitted only at the beginning of terms and can thus be formed into classes just as is done in all high schools, colleges and universities.

As a result of admitting only high school graduates, the school has been able to add to fewer than 100 students in its training schools in the United States.

If interested in business or secretarial training see what Oberlin has to offer.

"I told you in chapel last week," said Rev. Grether, "that you should all try to make someone happy during the week. How many of you did so?"

Micky H.: "I did."

Rev. G.: "That's nice. What did you do?"

Mickey: "I went to see my aunt, and she's always happy when I go home."

Junior Spiller: "I wish I knew some way to keep from hitting my thumb."

Charles W.: "Try holding the hammer with both hands."

Mr. Gattshall, demonstrating a small dynamo to his science class: "You notice this machine is turned by a crank."

He looked up in surprise at the shout of laughter.
